

REGISTER YOUR FACILITY NOW FOR:

Practical Strategies for Diagnosing & Treating Depression in Women at Midlife and Beyond

ACTIVITY OVERVIEW

This activity provides strategies to screen and treat your female patients and address their perceptions, concerns and questions related to major depressive disorder.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this activity, attendees will have received information that should allow them to:

- State the incidence and prevalence of major depressive disorder (MDD) in the United States respective to gender, ethnicity and age;
- Identify risk factors and etiologies of MDD in women;
- Describe reasons why MDD can be misdiagnosed or under-diagnosed in women at midlife and beyond and strategies for improving diagnostic outcomes;
- Integrate MDD early diagnosis and diagnostic tools into a primary care setting;
- Describe the goals of treatment in MDD in women at midlife and beyond;
- Describe how the clinical diagnosis and management of depression in primary care is affected by gender & age-related health disparities; and
- Identify comorbidities associated with MDD in women at midlife and beyond.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This activity is carefully designed to meet the educational needs of primary care providers, including physicians (internists, family physicians, general practitioners, obstetricians, gynecologists, geriatricians and hospitalists), physician assistants, nurse practitioners and registered nurses.
